

PETE FONTANA CHIEF ELF, OPERATIONS, POSTAL HOLIDAYS

Pete Fontana was named Chief Elf, Operations, Postal Holidays, in December 1981. As the Postal Holidays CEO, Fontana reports directly to Santa Claus and to Postmaster General Pat Donahoe.

In this role, Fontana meticulously and passionately oversees the 99-year old Operation Santa program that makes children's wishes come true from coast to coast. He manages a dedicated team of elves who work tirelessly to make this program an annual success story globally.

Fontana is the sole Spokes-Elf for the program and the Elf Ambassador for other posts around the world.

Prior to this position, Fontana held many other postal-related positions, building his resume and skill-set until he could assume the position that is so uniquely his.

Fontana holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Fulfillment Management and a Masters degree in Response Administration from the North Pole University.
